

TheNextD Launches Latin American Strategical Partnership with DataPredictor

Agreement Will Offer DATAPREDICTOR's Portfolio to TheNextD Customers

BOCA RATON, February 05th, 2024 – TheNextD has today announced a Latin American business partnership with the leading Artificial Intelligence and Data Science company DataPredictor (www.datapredictor.net). Under this partnership, TheNextD will enrich their Artificial Intelligence portfolio in Computer Vision with DataPredictor's top-notch expertise in data analysis, virtual assistants, bots, and training.

DataPredictor is a leading company in the development of advanced AI and Data Science solutions, aim at transforming how organizations manage and analyze large volumes of data to generate value. Their projects leverage cutting-edge technologies like ChatGPT and Large Language Models (LLMs) to create highly interactive and adaptive learning experiences, optimizing team performance across various industries.

TheNextD provides customer relationships, consultancy, on-site & remote support, and managed & monitoring services throughout the region across different market segments. This will not only assist local clients with having the right planning and implementation of the solution but also maximize their utilization with high levels of availability and great customer services 24x7 in English, Spanish and Portuguese.

Oswaldo Gonzalez, Founder and President of DataPredictor, commented that “In the field of Data Science, DataPredictor focuses on designing and deploying predictive models that help organizations make informed and strategic decisions. Machine Learning and statistical models are used to extract key insights from complex datasets. This enables clients not only to predict behaviors and trends but also to optimize processes and reduce costs.”

Ricardo Viaggio, Sales and Business Development Partner of TheNextD, commented that “DataPredictor comes to enrich our current portfolio of AI and Computer Vision with their state-of-the-art solutions of conversational AI to develop intelligent virtual assistants and bots that interact naturally and effectively in customer service environments and training processes. Working together will provide our clients tailored training programs that evolve with user input, ensuring a continuous learning experience.”

DataPredictor is clearly one of the top Innovative Sellers we've been looking for in our strategy to be leaders in the Data Science and Artificial Intelligence field offering a distinguish value-add to Visionary Buyers who are eager to enjoy the advantages of these great tools seamlessly integrated to their training and decision-making process that now will be powered by AI and LLMs.